

We need the ability to use this spectrum. In order to justify the cost of deploying wireless broadband in rural areas that are sparsely populated, we need the ability to have higher transmitter power and less interference from indoor devices.